THE TEACHER'S ART

The teacher's study has one end:
To help his spirit comprehend
That teaching is an art
Which stems from mind and heart.
Then will his teaching human be
Because it's free from pedantry.

With life itself the teacher deals.
Through months and years he ever feels
A quiet inner joy
When full-grown girl or boy
Reveals a will to serve mankind
Through warmth of heart and worth of mind.

In future days the teacher lives,
For boys and girls his strength he gives.
His noble art will trace
The future of the race.
High tribute pays to those who hold
In trust the arts that shape and mold.

—Chas. G. Reigner

IN MEMORIAM

Mr. Charles Brown

Because I could not stop for Death,
He kindly stopped for me:
The carriage held but just ourselves
And Immortality.

We slowly drove, he knew no haste,
And I had put away
My labor, and my leisure too,
For his civility.

We passed the school where children played
At wrestling in a ring:
We passed the fields of grazing grain,
We passed the setting sun.

We paused before a house that seemed
A swelling of the ground;
The roof was scarcely visible,
The cornice but a mound.

Since then 'tis centuries; but each
Feels shorter than the day
I first surmised the horses' heads
Were toward eternity.

—Emily Dickinson.

INTRODUCTION

FOREWORD

Each year this space in the Hackensack is given the task of setting forth the theme for the rest of the book. This year our theme is visual impressions. We have tried to picture our school and our fellow students just as we see them. We have endeavored to follow the old adage that "one picture is worth a thousand words." There is much less copy in our yearbook this year as we have tried to convey our theme through the use of pictures.

This yearbook is a reflection of our school, but more than that, it is a reflection of each individual and his accomplishments. It serves as a mirror to present the image of our past year to the world.
